

Divorce Lawyer in Abbotsford

Divorce Lawyer in Abbotsford - The various levels in the BC court system will each deal with different aspects of family law.

Both the Supreme Court and the Provincial Family Court, interim orders for child support, custody, and access can be acquired. Normally, these orders are obtained at the beginning of the case, while remaining active until the proceedings have ended. Often, an interim order is granted for the mom or dad to have complete possession of a particular family asset. Thus, the person is ordered to either sell the possession or to maintain possession of it.

Family cases may sadly take many months to close, even with the efforts of the Supreme Court and the Provincial Family Court.