Insurance Lawyers Abbotsford - You are eligible to go to court if an insurance firm violates the terms of a written contract. However, the courts would normally only force the insurance firm to pay the amounts owed in accordance to the contract.

If an insurance firm has withheld payments intentionally, you can be eligible for extra-contractual damages. These damages may be awarded if the insurance company fabricates or ignores proof in addition to giving incomplete information of your claim. The damages awarded include costs like for instance compensation for mental suffering as well as interest payments and the loss of RRSPs. Exemplary and punitive damages are granted when insurance companies show particularly malicious conduct.
