Aboriginal Legal Services Abbotsford - Tort law cases are legal cases which deal with civil wrongs. If you have sustained injury or harm as a consequence of somebody else's intentional wrongdoing or negligence, you could be qualified to receive damages in a tort law case.

Negligence causing medical malpractice, personal injury and car accidents is the most common kind of tort law case. Our tort law lawyers can help you determine who charges must be laid against and who is accountable for your damages. Even parties indirectly involved with an action which caused you harm can be held accountable for damages. Like for example, the delivery truck driver might be held responsible for harming you in an accident, but so may the employer that hired the driver. Several parties may, in some situations, be charged with negligence for the harm which you suffer.
