If you have been injured as the result of a medical mistake, you may be entitled to damages. Errors made by doctors, nurses, or other health care practitioners, that cause injury, may entitle you to compensation for "general damages," otherwise called pain and suffering. If you undergo loss of income and ability to earn income because of your injuries, you could be entitled to compensation. Other kinds of compensation include housekeeping and home maintenance costs, and health care expenses not included in your medical insurance.

Slip and Fall

If you go through a slip and fall incident, you can be entitled to compensation. Your entitlement to compensation will normally depend upon the conditions of your fall. This can comprise loss of ability to earn income and loss of income, "general damages," housekeeping and home maintenance costs, and health care costs over and above those included in your medical insurance. If the person causing the injury has an insurance policy that can be accessed on your behalf, it is essential that legal assistance is sought early so as to avoid limitation period problems.

There are several different types of injury that may take place from the negligence of injuries. These might comprise assault, wrongful death, and injury sustained on premises owned by others. These losses can effect the lives of the victims and their loved ones ought to have compensation.
